Neat, But Not Gaudy. From the land of the Moros a sol-dier writes: "A Moro matron passed lesser bond, but the renewal may be more relation as well and transmitted our quarters this morning wearing a heliotrope jacket, purple trousers t large heart designs worked in yell blue and pink embroidery; a red and black sarong; yellow plush slippers and yellow silk mantilla. The lady's maid (old) in modest garb, waiked be aind, carrying a magenta parasol."

Virtue of Ready Money. dy money works great cures. SUPERIORITY OF THE PEMALE. Same in All Ages as Shown by the Nature of Chivalry.

The old tosst was right-women are the superiors of men, but not in intel-lect, nor in those brawny qualities which are necessary for a tussle with the world, says a writer in Appleton's. They are superior by right of gentle-ness, purity, faith and the old sweet instinct to serve and to bless. Men haven't time in these crowded modern days for the fairer aspects of existence, just as in the days of Aucassin and Nicolette they were too much oc-cupied with fighting and hunting to do more than place their hopes of nobler, holier things in the white hands of some woman whose heart would cherish for them what they could not cherish for themselves. This, then, was and is the real nature of chivalry, despite on throned ladies and guarded pages and madridals and sonnets and the splendor falling on castle walls and all the rest of it!—this recognition of heaven seen in the sweet face of a beloved woman; this need to be prayed for and forgiven; this remembrance of some diviner world made real by the soul of a fair lady-fair whether in kings' courts or tending sheep by the mead ow brooks: this reaching out toward beauty because a girl's hair was gold and her eyes blue; this belief in mysterious things because a girl passed out of vision and was bungered for. and when seen again brought all heav "And I saw a damosel, as methought, all in white with a vessel in both her hands, and forwitha!, I was whole."

FRESHNESS" THAT MET REBUKE

Young Lawyer No Match for Veteran Jurist in Repartee.

Judge Allen was noted for his wise decisions and the promptness with which he delivered them. But when a delicate point of law came up, involving matters of the highest conse quence, he always "reserved deci-sions." His way of stating his position was as follows: "Gentlemen, this is an exceedingly serious problem; I'll go home and shoot a few bullbats, and meet you in court to-morrow morning at ten o'clock with my verdict."

One day an ambitious, but fresh young lawyer sought to have fun with Judge Allen. When the customary statement was made by his honor this budding Choate remarked: "Did the court ever shoot bullbats on my meadows? I believe I have the finest meadows and bats in the whole counrry. It is your honor's privilege of shoot there whenever you feel like reserving decision." "How low do reserving decision." "How low do the bats fly?" asked the judge. "Oh, about 11 feet, your honor; you hardly have to pull the trigger at all; you can knock 'em down with the muzzle of your gun." The venerable jurist chewed a little harder on his cud. then "handed down" this, which nearly killed the young lawyer: "The court says thankee; but the shooting is too Why, some lawyers fly lower than that, and you can knock em down with a battling stick."

Diplomacy.

A spring wagon full of rll kinds of potted plants stopped in front of a house in the Bronx a few days ago and the householder and his wife, who are deeply interested in floriculture, looked at the flowers with a view to making a purchase for the improve-ment of their garden. The vender rattled off the names of the varieties of roses and other flowers, but nothing in his stock seemed to interest the couple. Finally he pointed to a pot and said: "There's something you ould have for window boxes or hang-g baskets." "What is it?" asked the ing baskets." man. GATHERING DEAR GEORGE IN.

"You look very much excited, dear," he said, when she entered the parlor where he was waiting for her.

"Well, I should think I ought to look excited," she answered; "I've just had the most awful argument with ma."

And she began to weep hysterically.
"Why, what is the matter, my da ling?" be inquired, as he slid an arm around her waist and endeavored to soothe her; "what was the argument." "Oh! how can I tell you? She said you were only triffing with me, and that you would never pop the ques-tion; and I told her she did you a great injustice, for I believed that you would pop the question to-night. She said you wouldn't, and I said you would, and we had it hot and heavy. Dear George, you will not let ma triumph over me, will you?"

"Wwhy, certainly not." answered
